I would think our new OEM director or an AA should get this memo. I also think every OSC needs to be BCC'ed on the document.

I've also learned next time I will release my data. I'd like to find out the penalty for doing so as well, just in case.

This is extremely thorough, hope it helps you to finally get a full night sleep. Only one comment - I'd go through the sequence of events and standardize how you refer to the viewers (public vs. operational). I'd say either "public viewer" or "operational viewer" for every viewer reference. You do this in most cases but there are a few references to just "viewer" that might be confusing.

I'll let Eric and Dan weigh in but as documentation on how the first few days went from the folks working the response POV it reads fine to me.

Leadership refers to all you mentioned, I just didn't want to point out individuals.

Main comment is that I don't understand what Leadership refers to. Is that R8 senior management, R8 branch chief/team leader, HQ senior management, does it depend?

Second question what's the primary objective of the document?

Deliberative Process/Ex. 5

Both?

I don't think the objective actually effects the document itself too much which I think does a good job trying to be very factual. More in how the message that delivers the document is framed.

ASAP. I need this to go out while it is fresh. I also personally need it so I can purge.

I am on phones this week because we are so thin but then I need time off.

Thanks Team, it's a pleasure working with you all again.
